

Las Vegas Magazine
December 20, 2009

The main cover image is a black and white photograph of the Planet Hollywood Resort. The building's facade is covered in large, circular patterns. A prominent sign reads "MIRACLE MILE SHOPS" with a large "M" above it. To the right, a building with a striped facade has "SEPHORA" signs. In the foreground, a wide staircase is filled with people, some of whom are blurred due to motion. The word "showbiz" is written in a large, white, sans-serif font across the top of the image. Below it, in smaller text, is "WEEKLY + LAS VEGAS MAGAZINE".

Get the Mile High

Put on your walking shoes, power up your charge card and get ready to shop till you drop at the fabulous Miracle Mile Shops.

With 170 specialty stores to choose from, men, women and children will be able to scout the perfect outfit at popular brand-name stores such as H&M, Bebe, Urban Outfitters, Tommy Bahama, Ben Sherman, GapKids and BabyGap.

In addition to threads, the shopping mecca also houses stores selling accessories, fine art, footwear and toys. Sustenance also awaits the avid shopper with 15 casual to trendy restaurants to choose from serving everything from Italian to Japanese. —Kiko Miyasato

Changing Faces

Is that Neil Diamond up there onstage? Or is it Randy Travis? Mick Jagger? No, it's comedy impressionist Gordie Brown, who creates some of the funniest lyrical moments around.

In one show, I'd swear Michael Bolton was belting out "Frosty the Snowman"; it seems like Kanye West, Tom Petty and Green Day were up there, too.

Brown doesn't just do singing impressions; there are plenty of other comedy bits. He engages the audience, heckling latecomers and those who try sneaking out with equal relish. And when he pulled out Willie Nelson ("To All the Plants I've Smoked Before"), then followed it with Julio Iglesias, I thought I'd fall out of my chair. —Nina King
