In the 2008 Disney Pixar animated film WALL-E, the captain of the futuristic spaceship the Axiom invites passengers to celebrate the 700th anniversary of their five-year cruise with a “cupcake in a cup.” If you’re wondering what that might taste like, you need to get over to Sugar Factory inside the Miracle Mile Shops at Planet Hollywood Resort & Casino. The colorful candy store with a big celebrity following—Britney Spears, Mel B and Kim Kardashian are among its regular patrons—is a place to pick up classic candies like Nerds, novelty and seasonal sweets, chocolate dipped pretzels, fortune cookies and Rice Krispies treats and Sugar Factory’s signature couture lollipops—rhinestone-studded sticks with changeable lollipop heads. With a retail store already at The Mirage, the newer Miracle Mile location features an added attraction: a food counter featuring milkshakes, crepes, fudge, gelato and specialty coffees. Milkshakes include the aforementioned “cupcake in a cup” known as the Make a Wish milkshake—cupcake-flavored ice cream, vanilla cake pieces, frosting, rainbow sprinkles and whipped cream—a heavenly delight; the pretty, pink and playful Barbie milkshake—strawberries, gelato, marshmallow, whipped cream and rock candy crumbles on top; and the fruity Blueberry Pancake milkshake—blackberries and blueberries, maple syrup and a pancake—which tastes exactly like it sounds: delicious! Sugar Factory’s sweet crepes are just as decadent; you could probably get a cavity just by eating the Banana Split crepe, which is filled with berries and topped with bananas, vanilla gelato, chocolate sauce and sprinkles—and it would be totally worth it. If all this sweetness is too overwhelming for you, Sugar Factory also offers a variety of savory crepes, including the turkey Florentine with spinach, cheese and a creamy, smooth Alfredo sauce, and the crepe Benedict with bacon and a sunny-side up egg topped with Hollandaise sauce. Whichever yummy creation you pick, it’s sure to satisfy your sweet tooth!
