

MIRACLE EATS FOOD COURT BRINGS TOGETHER LAS VEGAS RESTAURANT FAVORITES

BY NINA KING

NOVEMBER 10, 2025

DINING

Birra tacos at Tacotarian at Miracle Eats in Miracle Mile Shops at Planet Hollywood
Courtesy photo

If you're looking for some of the best eats in Vegas while keeping the price affordable and the timing quick, check out Miracle Eats Food Court. This pretty, all-in-one stopping place features a variety of restaurants gathered inside a courtyard with vines, ferns and flower pendant lighting hanging from wood beams, while wooden planter walls separate the area outside.

Inside, you'll find a variety of favorites not only from Vegas, but other areas, too. If you're in the mood for Mexican food, I can't recommend Tacotarian highly enough. This home-grown Vegas favorite serves up a variety of Mexican treats, from carne asada and barbacoa to a taco and birria platter. The birria is sublime (and everything served is vegan). The founders of Tacotarian took pains to replicate the flavors you'd find if you traveled to Mexico City, and the quality here is obvious. You can even get a michelada. (Yup, vegan, too.)

Another big name here is Carnegie Pizza, which serves up a variety of slices, garlic knots, marinara for dipping and more, replicating in both flavor and looks the Carnegie Pizza made famous in New York. The white pizza has to be my favorite, but the pepperoni has plenty of fans. Irv's Burgers serves up luscious all-American classics with a loving backstory that dates to the 1940s along Route 66 in California. Get fries, chili dogs, shakes and even veggie burgers here.

Go a little decadent with Lobster ME's "Maine Dishes." With traditional lobster rolls, lobstersticles, lobster mac and cheese and lobster grilled cheese, you are sure to satisfy that lobster craving without a long wait at a fancy restaurant. For more casual fare, Dave's Hot Chicken serves up sliders, mini-sliders, tenders and bites in seven spice levels, plus sides like mac and cheese and shakes. Chipotle features bowls and burritos customized to your liking. Accompany your meal with a drink from Fat Tuesday—these frozen beverages come in plenty of flavors and are fun to take along with you.

Be on the lookout for SoulBelly BBQ to open soon as well. This is a massive favorite in Las Vegas' Arts District from James Beard-nominated chef Bruce Kalman.

Miracle Mile Shops at Planet Hollywood, 702.866.0703. miraclemileshopslv.com